Hazem Ben-Gacem Tunisia-Oxford Cooperation Programme

Tunisian Visiting Students Programme

The Oxford committee of the Hazem Ben-Gacem Tunisia-Oxford Cooperation Programme invites applications from doctoral students registered at any university in Tunisia in the humanities or social sciences for research studentships to be held at the University of Oxford.

Each studentship will be for ten weeks and will coincide with one of the three Oxford terms: Autumn (5 Oct – 11 Dec 2026); Winter (11 Jan – 19 March 2027); or Spring (19 April – 25 June 2027).

Each studentship will provide funding for visa and travel expenses between Tunis and Oxford, Oxford fees, and living expenses. Free accommodation will be provided in St Antony's College student housing.

Each student will be assigned an Oxford research supervisor and will be integrated into the academic life and events of the Middle East Centre and of St Antony's College, as well as the broader University of Oxford for the duration of their visit.

Requirements: All candidates must demonstrate research fluency (i.e. strong reading, speaking and listening skills) in English. Candidates must be advanced doctoral students who have already conducted significant research and writing on their doctoral subject. All candidates must have an excellent academic record.

Application: All applicants must provide the following materials:

- A cover letter in English explaining how one term's research in Oxford would contribute to the applicant's doctoral study. In preparing this letter, please consult the Oxford University website (University of Oxford) to identify the specific faculty/department you wish to be associated with and the Oxford professors who are most directly connected to your area of research. Candidates should note their availability for the Autumn, Winter or Spring terms.
- A research proposal of no more than 1500 words in length, in English, setting out the sources, the methods, and the contribution that the doctoral thesis makes.
- A one-page curriculum vitae, providing details of all university studies (including for each degree the name of the university and department, dates of attachment, thesis title, and overall result), research presentations, publications, and academic-related work.
- Transcripts of previous university study at the undergraduate and postgraduate level.
- The name and contact details of the student's doctoral supervisor who might be asked to provide a confidential reference (the letter of reference may be in English, French or Arabic).

Hazem Ben-Gacem Tunisia-Oxford Cooperation Programme

Tunisian Visiting Faculty Programme

The Oxford Committee of the Hazem Ben-Gacem Tunisia-Oxford Cooperation Programme invites applications from research-active faculty from any Tunisian university in the humanities and social sciences for the Tunisian Visiting Faculty Programme for 2026-2027.

Successful candidates will be elected Academic Visitors of St Antony's College, Oxford. Each academic visitorship will be for ten weeks and will coincide with one of the three Oxford terms: Autumn (5 Oct – 11 Dec 2026); Winter (11 Jan – 19 March 2027); or Spring (19 April – 25 June 2027).

Each academic visitorship will provide funding for visa and travel expenses between Tunis and Oxford, Academic Visitor fees at St Antony's College, and living expenses. Free accommodation will be provided in St Antony's College housing.

Requirements:

All applicants should hold a Ph.D. or equivalent. They must demonstrate research fluency (i.e. strong reading, speaking and listening skills) in English. Candidates should be research-active employees of a Tunisian university or recognized research centre.

Application: All applicants must provide the following materials:

- A cover letter in English explaining how one term's research in Oxford would contribute to your research. In preparing this letter, please consult the Oxford University website, and the website of the relevant faculty/department in Oxford, to find the resources you would want to use while in Oxford. Candidates should also suggest the names of Oxford faculty in their subject area with whom they would want to work. Candidates should note their availability for the Autumn, Winter or Spring terms.
- A research proposal of no more than 1500 words.
- An academic curriculum vitae with full list of publications.
- A letter of reference from your head of department, dean, or university president confirming permission to take ten weeks' sabbatical leave in Oxford.

All application materials should be sent by email to tunisia-oxford@sant.ox.ac.uk.
The deadline for applications is 16 February 2026.
